

Why won't my concrete driveway come clean?

One of the most difficult things to clean is cement. Due to concrete being very porous, any debris such as dirt, sap, and stains from rust or minerals sink deep into the material, making soap and water not enough to get the job done. To clean concrete properly, commercial and professional grade power washers and cleaning agents made specifically for cement are a must. So if you want to save yourself time, energy and money, don't try using a cheap pressure washer and cleaners available at any department store. A typical driveway can range from any size between 540 square feet to 1600 square feet or more. What is your time really worth when you can get a professional to get the job done right the first time. With a low quality pressure cleaner you will be cleaning only about one square foot per a minute. A driveway that is roughly 18' x 30' would take you about 9 hours and the quality of the job done would be poor. What if your driveway is larger than that, you can probably cancel any weekend plans and time with family, just to partially clean your driveway. If you would like your driveway and sidewalk cleaned properly, the simple thing to do is hire a professional concrete cleaner who will have all necessary experience and equipment to do the job. Save your back, your time, and wasted efforts and enjoy your weekend.
